WTF: Eat Chocolate; Become Fresh-Faced and Fabulous

While some couples are so comfortable, they have no qualms about popping each other's pimples (ew!), I'm going to assume that you're at the stage where that new pimple on your chin is obviously the worst thing in the world ever, destined to keep you from getting laid for the rest of eternity.

Now, you could spend $70 on the latest face mask or skin cream or newfangled beauty product...or you could sit on the couch and eat chocolate.

No! Hear me out guys!

$37.95-$68.95, [Frutels]

Frutels is the first acne care in a chocolate (I swear I'm not making this up, you guys). It's supposed to clear your skin from the inside out, using vitamins combined with the antioxidants in chocolate. The site recommends eating 2-4 a day.

I'm suddenly quite nervous about the world imploding.

ABOUT THIS BLOG

Steph Auteri is a freelance writer and proofreader who has been published in Publishers Weekly, New York Press, Playgirl, and other bastions of fine writing. She maintains a professional site <http://www.stephiswrite.com>, and also blogs about freelancing over at Freelancedom. You can keep up on her day-to-day by visiting her Twitter page.

Alex Zalben is a writer living in New York City. He's written for McSweeney's, Modern Humorist and PulpSecret.com. As one-fifth of the sketch comedy group Elephant Larry, he has been written up in the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, and pretty much every other major publication. Their blog was named one of PC Magazine's Top Blogs for 2007, and they recently won an ECNY Award for their viral short, "Minesweeper: The Movie." Alex did not know love until he bought his first Mac.

Diana Vilibert is a freelance writer, among other things. Born in Lithuania, she now lives in New Jersey, where she doesn't have to walk to work ten miles in the snow, barefoot, uphill both ways. Diana cannot afford most of the products she writes about because she buys too many pairs of heels to make up for her shoeless childhood. She's written for MarieClaire.com, Janemag.com, and CosmoGIRL!.

Shaun Seneviratne is a dude just like anyone else. Just your average guy that raps Bone Thugs-n-Harmony to strangers on the subway at 4 a.m., doesn't chew his food because he believes it's a waste of time, and sleeps next to a scale replica of the Ghostbusters headquarters. He can rest easy knowing Egon, Peter, Ray, and Winston have his back. He currently lives in northern New Jersey, plays bass in Rapid Cities, and recently started a tumblr.

Lauren Mahler is a writer and editor who lives in California, where the sun never sets and everyone rollerskates to work. She coedits Beeswax Magazine and spends the remainder of her time as a freelance writer and letterpresser. She truly believes that someday she will master the ultimate multitask of blogging while letterpressing, though that might mean that she'll need a second pair of arms.
